Allied Health Professions Australia

Who are allied health professionals (AHPs)?

Allied health professionals represent approximately a third of the health workforce and can be found in aged care, mental health, disability and health sectors.

Allied health professionals provide a broad range of diagnostic, technical, therapeutic and direct health services to improve the health and wellbeing of the consumers they support. They are university qualified practitioners with specialised expertise in preventing, diagnosing and treating a range of conditions and illnesses, often working within a multidisciplinary team.

Patients and Carers can nominate their most respected allied health professional for this prestigious Award from any of the following professions:
